International Medical Graduate Conference 2025

About the conference

International medical graduates make up one-third of Australia's medical workforce, making significant contributions to healthcare across diverse communities. However, the journeys for international medical graduates can be complex, time-consuming, confusing, and costly, involving multiple stakeholders across various parts of the system.

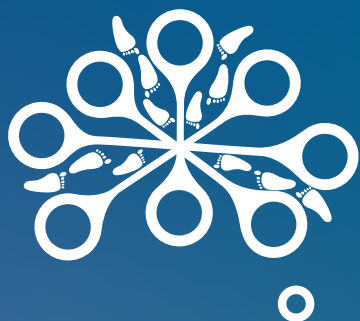

This conference provides a unique opportunity for international medical graduates and stakeholders across healthcare, education, assessment, regulation and government sectors to come together. Through shared experiences, networking, and collaboration, we can build stronger, safer, and more supported journeys for international medical graduates in Australia.
